

Safety Management

Expertise and Advice for the Chemical Industry

Compliance

Considering the myriad of international and national regulations that exist, along with numerous codes of practice governing the transport and storage of dangerous goods, it is often difficult to maintain the necessary knowledge, skill and focus across your management team.

As a chemical industry supply chain specialist, safety is Agility's top priority. To support this imperative, Agility has a team of safety advisers with backgrounds in chemical manufacturing, supply chain operations and enforcement functions. We also work closely with regulatory bodies, advisory agencies and other chemical industry stakeholders to stay abreast of and influence regulation across the chemical industry supply chain.

Safety Services

Agility provides dangerous goods safety expertise to suit a range of needs, from practical project-based consultancy engagements and nominated DGSA service to training courses covering all modes of transport:

- Dangerous Goods Consultancy
- Auditing & Assessment
- Logistics Safety Update
- Best Practice Development & Standardization
- Dangerous Goods Safety Advisor Training
- Dangerous Goods Enforcement Training
- Safety Incident, Service Failure Management
- Nominated DGSA Service
- DG General Awareness Training
- Incident Management Training

Peace of Mind

Agility believes that compliance comes from understanding. In whatever way you choose to partner with Agility's safety management experts, you will benefit from concise, prescriptive consultancy and tailored learning programs to ensure your understanding and to support your ongoing personal development and corporate compliance. Agility's expertise, best practices, compliance and risk mitigation are delivered cost effectively to provide total peace of mind.

A Global Network

With a worldwide network of more than 34,000 employees in 120 countries Agility not only allows your business to take advantage of our heritage and expertise in the chemicals sector, but also leverages our reach as a complete global logistics partner. We combine an uncompromising approach to safety management with local market insights to provide a truly comprehensive service package.